

A Working Community

Connection Opportunities: Create connection points for the purpose of building and developing relationships across schools, departments, and extension sites.

Team: Chris Johnson, Ellen Marmon, Greg Mcelyea, MK Graetz, Meredith Fulda, Robbie Danielson

#	Action Steps	Person (s) Responsible	Complete by Date	Notes
1	Design and implement a structured approach during faculty school meetings to enhance understanding of various seminary departments. Include interactive sessions, presentations, and Q&A sessions to foster cross-departmental awareness.	Project Team	15-Mar	We've discussed this idea with the Academic Council, and they are very open to it, as long as these sessions in their meetings are perceived as useful and not forced. The next step is to collaborate with the deans to determine how this could be implemented in each of their schools.
2	Conduct a thorough review and revision of community meetings, ensuring they are redesigned to create meaningful opportunities for learning, relationship building, and fostering unity among faculty and staff.	Project Team	28-Feb	The team has developed a framework for a new kind of administrator, faculty, and staff gathering aimed to create connection points and the development of relationships across schools, departments, and sites. The rubric framework includes four elements that would be included in all gatherings to some degree: a spiritual investment, information updates, relationship building, and professional development. We're recommending February 19.
3	Plan and execute an intentional day during the spring semester dedicated to bringing the community together. This event should serve as a connection accelerator, fostering relationships and collaboration among faculty, staff, and administrators.	Project Team	30-Apr	We'll use a similar rubric framework mentioned in action step 2 above to guide the planning. The proposed theme is focusing on Asbury's history, mission, and strategic plan. We're recommending April 12.
4	Develop a format and framework for departments to learn about each other. Specify the content to be shared and determine the timing of these sessions, integrating them into faculty and all community meetings.	Project Team	15-May	The team is recommending that we leverage the existing Info Exchanges meetings to accomplish this step, but with increased emphasis by the Cabinet for participation and involvement, ensuring there is a representative from every department, school, and site. Additionally, the team is working on a process of disseminating key information after the meeting to the rest of the seminary.
5	Create a list of organic connection points that faculty and staff leaders can use as examples to build connections. These examples can be distributed as a resource for fostering organic relationships.	Project Team	15-May
6	Determine and implement a strategy for introducing new team members to the seminary community.	Project Team	30-Apr	